LUMS Case Collection Live on the Harvard Business Publishing Catalogue

Last year, Harvard Business School Publishing (HBSP) approved the distribution of SDSB-LUMS cases on its online catalogue as a content partner. Selected SDSB cases are now available online through HBSP for educators worldwide. SDSB is the seventh institution in Asia and fourth in South Asia to have its case collection on Harvard. This is an important milestone for the school and will make SDSB cases globally accessible. To celebrate this achievement, and to acknowledge the efforts of the Case Research Centre team, a small ceremony was organised on 27 October 2017 in the SDSB Faculty Lounge.

Beef Value Chain in Pakistan: Challenges and Opportunities

Authors: Dr. Fazal J. Seyyed, Dr. M. Adeel Zaffar, Mr. M. Hyat Jaspal, RA Hafsa Ashfaq
LUMS No: 13-105-2017-2

More than 8 million families in the rural areas of Pakistan are involved in raising livestock as an integral part of the agricultural sector. The livestock sector contributes 11.8% to the national GDP of Pakistan. After milk, meat (beef, mutton, and poultry) is one of the major products of livestock. The total meat production in Pakistan has increased from 3.095 million tons in 2010-11 to 4.061 million tons in 2016-17, indicating an annual compound growth rate of 5.6%. Despite rapid growth in meat production and a sizable livestock population, the volume of meat is not sufficient to meet local demand and capitalise on the rapidly growing global demand for halal meat. A number of factors including poor livestock management practices, improper rearing of animals, and inherent inefficiencies in the meat value chain continue to limit realisation of the sector's full potential. The primary objective of this note is to map the beef value chain from breeding of live animals to consumption of beef by the final consumers. It focuses on each stage of the value chain by analysing the current practices, identifying challenges, and highlighting opportunities to develop the beef sector of Pakistan. This note is available to faculty and can be obtained by sending an email request to shafqat.bhatti@lums.edu.pk

Mediterranean Textile Company: Negotiating for the Release of Hostages

Authors: Dr. Ghufran Ahmad, Mr. Danish Rasheed

LUMS No: 05-771-2016-1

This is a unique case that touches upon multiple dimensions of the operations of a multinational corporation in foreign countries. The case is structured around a specific issue of negotiating for the release of hostages in the wake of political and economic turmoil during the Tahrir Square Revolution in Egypt in 2011. The CEO of Mediterranean Textile Company (MTC), Mr. Usman Khan, finds himself perplexed about how to resolve the conflict in his company, which has been divided into two factions due to the political crisis. Some managers, mostly Pakistani expatriates, are being kept as hostages by the Egyptian workers who are asking for more lucrative salaries and working terms. How Usman plans to handle this situation and negotiate with the union representatives is consequential for MTC. This case is available to faculty and can be obtained by sending an email request to shafqat.bhatti@lums.edu.pk

STRATEGIC SECTOR RESEARCH CENTRE

Seminars at SDSB

SSRC conducted three seminars at SDSB in October 2017. The topics of these sessions engulfed areas of CPEC, Islamic Finance and Economics, and Unanticipated Terms of Trade. Below are the details:

1. Anticipated Versus Unanticipated Terms of Trade Shocks & The J-Curve Phenomenon

Dr. Syed Zahid Ali is a Professor of Economics at LUMS and spoke of using a dynamic stochastic general equilibrium (DSGE) model, to examine the impact of anticipated and unanticipated terms of trade (ToT) shocks on aggregate output, inflation and the trade balance (TB) which allows an alternative explanation of the J-curve phenomenon. One finds that an unanticipated ToT shock increases real output as well as inflation but the J-curve phenomenon may not exist under a certain condition. This seminar took place at SDSB on Friday, October 27, 2017.

2. Lessons from Islamic Economics Following the Global Finance Crisis

Sheikh Bilal Khan, Co-author of 'International Takaful Report: Shari'ah and Legal Analysis', holds an LL.B (Hons), MA and MBA from various British universities as well as BA and MA from Darul Uloom Karachi. In the global Islamic Finance industry, he is uniquely positioned as both an English qualified lawyer from the 'Magic Circle' law firm Linklaters and an award-winning Shari'ah Scholar.

Sheikh Bilal is an honorary Freeman of the City of London and currently a Catalyst at the UK Government Department for International Trade (DIT) and Senior Adviser to several British All Party Parliamentary Groups (APPGs), working in close collaboration with the British Foreign Office, UK Parliamentarians and the City of London Corporation to strengthen strategic relationships between the UK and countries across Middle East, Asia and Africa.

In his capacity as a Shari'ah Scholar, he also serves as an adviser to the Shari'ah Standards Review Committee of the Accounting and Auditing Organisation for Islamic Financial Institutions (AAOIFI) and Takaful Panel Member of the International Cooperative and Mutual Insurance Federation (ICMIF).

3. Progress and Prospects of CPEC by 'China-Pakistan Management Initiative'

Dr. Shahid Rashid is the Executive Director of the Centre of Excellence of the China Pakistan Economic Corridor (CE-CPEC), Pakistan Institute of Development Economics (PIDE), in Islamabad. The CE-CPEC is envisioned as an apex research center to work as a think tank to reap the true spirit of the CPEC portfolio; energy, infrastructure, Gwadar and industrial cooperation to support the broader initiatives namely Pakistan Vision 2025 and One Belt One Road (OBOR). He talked about the current projects of CPEC and its socioeconomic impacts; the prospects of CPEC for the business community and the society at large. He also discussed the future of CPEC and the way forward. He had an interactive session and also shared factual and research based responses to frequently asked questions by the business community and society on this topic. This event took place on Friday, October 6, 2017.

Lahore University of Management Sciences (LUMS), with its partners, invites submissions for the 7th Asian Management Research and Case Conference 2018 (AMRC 2018).

According to the IMF, Asia continues to be the leader of global economic growth. Growth will remain strong at 5.4% in 2018. For the last several decades, emerging economies in Asia have successfully dominated the global economic outlook. These developments have led to a renewed interest among management scholars in conducting research on issues relevant to the region. This has led to the popular convergence-divergence debate amongst academics and management practitioners. With a significant increase in global foreign direct investment in Asia, are management practices in Asia gradually resembling those of the developed economies of the west or is the region pushing back? The challenges facing this region are manifold, heterogeneous and complex. In order to explore this debate further and add to the research on this topic, this year's conference theme is "Convergence or divergence: Emerging trends in management research and cases in Asia".

Submissions may include: Research Papers, Teaching Cases, Panel or Paper Symposia & Proposals for Doctoral Colloquia

All submissions will be reviewed based on originality, rigor, and relevance to the conference theme. All accepted manuscripts will be presented at the conference.

CALL FOR PAPERS

International Conference on Creating Inclusive Organizational and Public Spaces
Venue: Lahore University of Management Sciences, Lahore
Dates: 30-31 March 2018

Availability, and accessibility of personal and public space represents one of the central concerns of these turbulent times. While an ideal public space should be open and accessible to individuals irrespective of their background or identity, in practice, public space almost always entails limitations and exclusions based on law, public policy and local norms. Similarly, with the increasing ubiquity of surveillance and social media in our lives, availability of personal space (material and ideological) is increasingly becoming a contested domain.

Management plays a central role in maintaining the system of permissions and prohibitions that sustain the particular socially constructed nature of space in an organization or polity. For example, material and social management of space within organizations leads to unequal distribution of status and power; factors that in turn lead to suboptimal individual and organizational performance. Similarly, as the Black Lives Matter movement highlights, police officials are often responsible for extra surveillance and selective implementation of the law on different minorities hindering their presence in the public space.

Hence, organizational and social spaces are not neutral. Instead, while some modes of expression, identities and bodies are treated as normal – even ideal – others deemed deviant are either denied access or marked for surveillance and subsequent marginalization and invisibility. At the same time, management and policy can also play a critical role in creating more accessible and inclusive spaces in organizations and society. All this makes space as an important site of governance and management.

This inter-disciplinary conference aims to bring together scholars having different thematic, geographical and methodological expertise to engage with contemporary debates about the governance and management of space in contemporary organizations and polity.

Suggested streams can include, but are not limited to the following:

- Management of Organizational Spaces
- Governance of Public Space
- Gender and Space
- Diversity, Identity and Governance of Space
- Financial Inclusion
- Governance of Virtual Spaces
- Power, politics and Space
- Managing Urban and Environmental Spaces
- Democracy and Public Space
- Organizations as Public Spaces
- Public, Private and Hybrid Spaces
- Open Stream

We welcome both empirical and theoretical papers as well case studies that explore the main theme in interesting innovative ways. We especially encourage doctoral students, early career researchers, practitioners and policy makers to submit their work and participate in the conference.
